The Manufacturing of Building Materials is an Essential Service

BMI continues to monitor updates of the outbreak of the Covid-19 virus and follows guidance from the World Health Organization (WHO), the federal and provincial health officials. We will continue to take the necessary action to help protect BMI employees, family members and the community.

The provincial government has mandated the temporary closure of many companies that are considered non-essential, the list of those that can remain open is lengthy. The products and services BMI supply are considered essential. Therefore, at the current time BMI branches and production facilities will remain open and operational.

We are fully operational, and also adapting to what are the health indications. We are doing our best to ensure constant support for our customers and partners. We are organized to use all possible digital resources (remote assistance, video conferencing, smart working).

We will continually update our position and policies as this crisis evolves. We all play a role in maintaining the health and safety of our staff and customers.

Stay Safe
